Man: Hi Charlotte! How's it going?
Charlotte: Well, I've been accepted to the London College of Music and I'm going to study there for three years.
Man: That's great! But what about accommodation? Renting a flat in London must be expensive.
Charlotte: Yes, that's why my parents have bought a houseboat for me.
Man: A houseboat? You must be joking! Whose idea was that?
Charlotte: Well, actually my mother read about someone living on a houseboat and I really wanted to give it a try. My dad persuaded my mum that it makes sense. If they rented a flat for me for three years, it would cost them much more than buying a houseboat. It's a good deal and they can sell the boat when I graduate.
Man: What is the houseboat like?
Charlotte: Well, it's quite old but very comfortable. There are two small bedrooms and a dining room. There's also a kitchen. At first, I wanted to move some of the walls and make my bedroom bigger but then I decided to leave everything as it was.
Man: Did you have to renovate it?
Charlotte: Not really. My parents and I only had to buy some furniture and paint the outside. And I asked my friends to help with the painting so we spent less than £500.
Man: Aren't you afraid to live there alone?
Charlotte: Actually, I feel quite safe but I wouldn't mind having some company. I've put an ad online and I hope to find a housemate who will take the other bedroom.
Man: Good idea.

There's a blues festival in our city every year. One year I invited my best friend but she couldn't go so I went by myself. During the concert a really good-looking man came up to me and we started chatting. It was love at first sight! He's been my husband for five years now and we are looking forward to going to the festival this year to celebrate our wedding anniversary. We hope to have a great time!

My parents are huge fans of music festivals. Last year my dad took my mum to a concert of her favourite rock band to celebrate their wedding anniversary. But he kept it secret from her that he'd paid for the VIP seats in the front row and that he'd arranged for her to meet the guitarist from the band. My mum says it was one of the best evenings in her life! She hadn't expected anything like that.

Five years ago my boyfriend and I were at a festival in Leeds. During one of the concerts it suddenly started to rain heavily. We got so wet that we decided to go back to our tent on the top of a nearby hill. But when we got there, we found our tent at the bottom of the hill. The rain had washed it down. Our tent wasn't the only one. There was a big mess of wet and dirty tents all the way down the hill. Nobody was prepared for that because it had been sunny before. The only positive thing was that we could still hear the musicians playing on in the distance. When we got back home after the festival, we both fell ill.

My mum and I went to the Glastonbury festival and we stayed in a really cheap hotel near the festival grounds. The weather conditions were perfect for the festival and I was looking forward to seeing my favourite bands live. Unfortunately, I got food poisoning after a hotel dinner. A sharp pain in my belly woke me up in the middle of the night. Mum gave me some medicine but it didn't help. As a result, we ended up staying in the hotel because I was too weak to go out. I didn't see a single concert.

It was my first music festival and I was looking forward to seeing the singer from The Muse, the famous rock band. My boyfriend and I left the car at the car park and walked to the entrance gates. It took us half an hour to get there. The weather was extremely hot so it was really tiring. At the gates the guy asked for our tickets. I put my hand in my pocket but the tickets were not there. So I whispered "I think I left them in the car". My boyfriend had to walk all the way back! An hour later he returned to find me with two tickets in my hand. I'd found them in my bag!

Are your tired of preparing the same boring sandwiches for breakfast every morning? If so, why don't you try something new and change your everyday routine! Come to the Breakfast Market, which will be held in the city park every second weekend in July and August.

You'll have the opportunity to taste regional specialties from all over the country, as well as to try out more exotic cuisine and a wide range of original dishes inspired by recipes from all over the world. You'll also have a chance to meet famous chefs specializing in selected regional cuisines and see them prepare their best dishes. There will be no food trucks at the Market. Instead all the dishes will be sold from traditional stalls. Everybody entering the grounds of the Breakfast Market will be given a free piece of homemade apple pie.

Don't bring any knives or forks, plates or cups – everything will be provided for you. Picnic chairs and tables will be available too but if you want to taste the delicious food stretching out comfortably on the grass it's best to take your own blanket with you. That way I'm sure you'll enjoy the picnic atmosphere during the event.

The Breakfast Market isn't only about a passion for food but also about spending quality time with the family. The Market offers a number of activities to take part in. Adults can take part in workshops, make pottery, do fitness or aerobics. Youngsters will have a lot of fun, too! Our volunteers will paint children's faces and the kids will be able to build and fly colourful kites. So join us and have fun.
