Boy: I'm so hungry, I think I'll have my sandwiches now. Do you want one? It's going to be a long trip.
Girl: Well, I don't really like eating on the train. But thanks for offering.
Boy: I see you've got a book with you. What's it about?
Girl: It's a detective story. But I don't feel like reading now. I want to listen to my favourite playlist.
Boy: So can I have a look at your book?
Girl: Sure, here you are.

Man: A warm welcome to Tim Robin, the two-time Olympic medalist. As you probably know, Tim left our school 15 years ago. But you may not know that the swimming classes here inspired him to get into competitive sport. Later, Tim took up running and, in this sport, qualified for the Olympic Games where he won gold in the men's one hundred metre race. Four years later he broke the national record in the long jump and won silver. Over to you Tim.

Man: Do you remember that beautiful picture of sunflowers we saw at the art gallery last week?
Girl: Yes, Mr Green, but I think the picture of apples and pears was even better.
Man: I'm glad to hear it, Amy, because today I've brought some fruit and vegetables. They are the most colourful ones I could find at the market. So, everyone, please, take out your paints, brushes and paper and you can start. I'm sure your paintings will be just as interesting as the ones we saw at the gallery.

Tekst 4.

Man: If you want to take great photos of your dog, you don't have to use professional equipment. You just need a smartphone. But there's one thing to remember. Most people stand when they take photos of their pets. And that's not a good idea because what they get is just a boring picture of their pet as seen from above. Why not sit down or even lie on the ground? Your smartphone should be at the same height as your dog's eyes. Then your dog's face will look more interesting in the picture.

Tekst 5.

Girl: Dad, I need your help. I'm at the supermarket with the food and drinks that I've bought for tomorrow's school trip. Mum's just called to say that she won't be able to pick me up as we'd planned because she needs to stay at work longer than expected. Carrying all the shopping home will be quite hard for me, so could you come and pick me up? If that's not possible, I can always take the bus, but the app on my phone says the next bus is coming in an hour.

Girl: When I listen to a song, I write the lyrics on a piece of paper and I illustrate them with a simple drawing. Recently, I heard a song about a problem that worries me a lot. I decided to play it to my mum and dad. I also showed them my picture. They started asking questions and as a result we had a really good talk about my problem.

Boy: I enjoy listening to classical music. Once, I invited my best friend over to my house so that we could listen to my favourite album together. But when the music started, he began to talk to me. How could he listen to music while talking at the same time? It made me feel angry. But I didn't say anything, because I didn't want to hurt his feelings.

Wypowiedź 3.

Girl: My sister and I like to listen to music when we are doing our homework. It's easier to concentrate with quiet music in the background. Yesterday, however, I turned the volume up because we were discussing what to buy for Mum's birthday and we didn't want her to hear us. Suddenly, Mum opened the door to our room and said angrily, "Turn it off! Instead of studying, you're listening to music again!"

Wypowiedź 4.

Boy: The reason I like listening to music is that the words of songs often express my own feelings. For example, my favourite rap song has really helped me understand myself better. My parents are not fans of rap music, so when I play it loudly, they always tell me to turn it down. But I like it when the sound of my music blocks out the rest of the world. Then there is just music and me!

Woman: Today, we have a special guest, Andy, who walked all the way from Mexico to Canada. Hi, Andy! Can you tell us why you decided to go on this journey?

Man: Hello, everyone! Well, after 20 years of teaching at a high school I was looking for a challenge. I also wanted to have more time for my hobby, which is photography.

Woman: I guess it took a lot of time to get ready for your expedition. What did you do to get fit enough for the walk?

Man: Well, I went swimming every Saturday and Sunday. I worked out at the gym three times a week and I went jogging as often as I could.

Woman: Impressive! Let's talk about the walk itself. What was the hardest part of it?

Man: It was definitely the weather. Heavy rain and low temperatures were sometimes a problem. But I kept going and I felt so proud of myself when I reached Canada and took the last selfie.

Woman: Can you tell us something about the selfies?

Man: Well, I took a picture of myself after every mile of my walk and immediately posted it on social media. After returning home, I wrote an article about my journey for a hiking magazine in which I used some of my selfies.

Woman: Thank you, Andy, for coming to our studio.
